

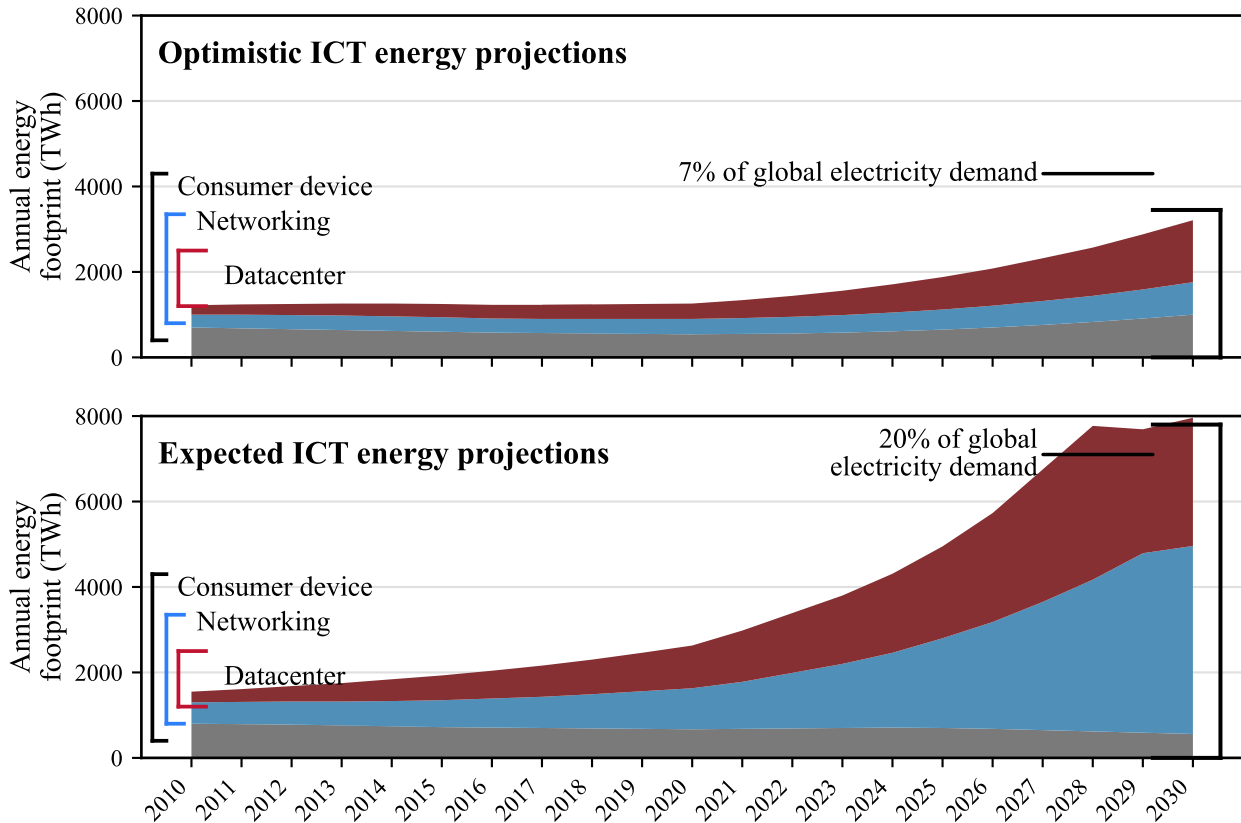

Fig. 1. Projected growth of global energy consumption by information and computing technology (ICT). On the basis of optimistic estimates (top) and expected estimates (bottom), ICT is projected to account for approximately 7% and 20% of global electricity demand by 2030, respectively.